Gratitude from Gaza: Students of EE. UU. manifest against the war in Gaza

On Wednesday, meetings of people in the Gaza Strip north and center were held to express their gratitude to the students on the university campuses of EE. UU. who have been protesting against the war in Gaza.

In Deir al-Balah, in front of the Aqsa Martyrs hospital, doctors, nurses, and medical staff carried signs with messages that said "United against genocide", "The massacre of children must stop" and "Supporting the struggle for justice".

Dr. Saad Abu Sharban said he was "over the moon" with the images of the protesters in other countries, because it meant "that in the whole world there are human beings who know what is happening here in the Gaza Strip at this moment".

The Palestinians in Gaza have been showing their support for the American protesters during several days. In various refugee camps in the closed Gaza Strip on Wednesday, the children were also seen holding signs and banners with the names of different American universities where they have carried out demonstrations in support of Palestine, saying "¡Thank you for your solidarity!"

Nadia Al-Dibs, a mother whose children were holding banners behind her in Deir al-Balah, said she felt grateful to the "valiant students" in the American universities for their solidarity with Gaza and for demanding a ceasefire.

"The Arab populations have not worried about us, while the students in the American universities have worried about us, they have worried about the blood that is spilled from us, our buildings that are being destroyed and our children whose lives are being destroyed... a million thanks to them," she said.

The public appreciation of the people in Gaza is taking place in the middle of a growing controversy in the EE. UU. about the demonstrations on the campus, which have spread across the country in the last few weeks in the face of the increase in tensions due to the war in Israel in Hamas, launched after the attack on October 7 that left more than 1,200 people dead.

The protests in EE. UU. are widely directed to demand the end of the devastating assault by Israel on the Palestinian enclave, which has killed more than 34,000 people, according to the Palestinian Ministry of Health, and is approaching its eighth month.

But critics say that some demonstrations have crossed the line towards antisemitism. Israel has alleged that the demonstrations are being manipulated by "external agitators".

The Israeli ambassador to the UN, Gilad Erdan, denounced the university demonstrations in a speech before the General Assembly in New York on Wednesday.

Erdan accused the demonstrations of being formed by "antisemitic protesters affiliated with agitadores externos". Dijo que los estudiantes deben ser expulsados, mientras que los profesores universitarios y los presidentes deben enfrentar "acciones rápidas y graves".

El discurso en la Asamblea General siguió a una votación en el Consejo de Seguridad el mes pasado sobre una resolución que habría reconocido un estado palestino. Esa votación fue vetada por EE. UU.

Erdan arremetió contra sus colegas de la ONU, acusando a la Asamblea General de difundir retórica antisionista, que
