Israel: ofensiva contra Hamas en Gaza llega a su fin, pero conflicto con Hezbollah se intensifica

El primer ministro israelí, Benjamin Netanyahu, ha declarado que la fase más intensa del asalto contra Hamas en Gaza está llegando a su fin, lo que permitirá el despliegue de fuerzas hacia la frontera libanesa, donde los enfrentamientos con el grupo militante Hezbollah se han intensificado, aumentando los temores de una guerra más amplia.

Netanyahu hizo estas declaraciones en una entrevista con el canal de televisión israelí Channel 14, donde también retrocedió en su compromiso con una propuesta de alto el fuego con Hamas apoyada por EE.UU., en su lugar sugiriendo una oferta mucho más limitada.

Negociaciones y tensiones entre Israel y Hezbollah

El primer ministro israelí también dijo que espera una solución diplomática al conflicto, pero advirtió que está dispuesto a "enfrentar el problema de una manera diferente" si es necesario. Además, Netanyahu afirmó que el ejército israelí continuará con las "operaciones de siega" en Gaza, con ataques selectivos contra objetivos de Hamas para evitar que el grupo se reagrupe.

El conflicto entre Israel y Hamas en Gaza y el enfrentamiento entre Israel y Hezbollah en la frontera libanesa se han complicado mutuamente, ya que Hezbollah ha dicho que un alto el fuego en Gaza es una condición previa para que termine su fuego y esté dispuesto a negociar, mientras que Israel ha dicho que Hezbollah debe retirarse de la frontera libanesa como lo exige la resolución del Consejo de Seguridad de la ONU que puso fin a la segunda guerra del Líbano en 2006.

Palestinos buscan artículos recuperables en un basurero que se extiende por lo que solía ser el mercado Firas en la ciudad de Gaza.

Mientras tanto, la creciente amenaza de un conflicto en el norte ha reforzado la determinación de Hamas de no aceptar un acuerdo de alto el fuego a cambio de rehenes mientras las tropas israelíes estén presentes en Gaza y continúen las operaciones ofensivas.
