The 2024 Masters will spark into life in Georgia this week as golf's best battle it out for the famous Green Jacket.

The Masters always provides the very best test of golf and is staged at the beautiful Augusta National each year.

Jon Rahm - 9/1

Rahm's form, by his own very high standards, has dipped as of late with his putter, in particular, not playing ball at the moment.

But the Spaniard does enjoy the test of Augusta and has finished in the top ten at each of his last four Masters, being T5 last year.

Rahm, recently ousted as world number one, is the reigning US Open champion and many feel he is due a week where his game all comes together once more.

Spain has had three Masters Champions in Seve Ballesteros, Jose Maria Olazabal and Sergio Garcia and Rahm would love to add his name to that list.

With some doubting him recently, Rahm may arrive in Georgia with a point to prove.

Justin Thomas - 11/1

Thomas has yet to really catch fire at the Masters with his only top ten finish coming with a fourth place in 2024.

The 2024 PGA Championship winner is due another big week at a Major.

Thomas has been steady if unspectacular this season but has had a clutch of top fives and will be confident heading to Georgia.

He won The Players last year and knows how to clinch victory on tough golf courses.

Cameron Smith - 12/1

The reigning Players champion, Australia's Smith will be looking for his maiden Major title.

He pushed Dustin Johnson all the way at Augusta in 2024 and is one of the world's most in-form players at the moment.

If he is in contention and can keep his emotions in check down the strip, Smith will be a hard man to beat.

He showed incredible scrambling skills at TPC Sawgrass and won the Sentry Tournament of Champions in January with a ridiculous score of 34 under par, showing his ease at making birdies too.

Dustin Johnson - 12/1

Johnson rediscovered some of his very top form at the WGC Match Play recently and looks to be getting back to his imperious best.

Johnson won the Masters in 2024 with a record score of 268, 20-under-par.

The 37-year-old is a man for the big occasion and he'll be itching to add to his two Majors wins so far.

He has struggled recently – barring his fourth at the Match Play in Austin. Will he be able to string together four days of elite play to claim another Green Jacket?

Rory McIlroy - 12/1

Can Rory complete his career Grand Slam? It's a question that's been asked for nearly a decade now.

McIlroy has won just about everything in the game but a Green Jacket still eludes him.

He's had a host of top ten finishes at Augusta but has never done better than fourth.

He's also been hit and miss again this season but has won the Wells Fargo Championship and CJ Cup in the last year.

Many fans around the world would love to see Rory finally get over the line at the Masters.

Other picks for Masters glory

Jordan Spieth - 14/1

Spieth is back to his best and will relish another crack at the Masters.

The three-time Major winner won it in 2024 as he dominated the sport.

Spieth signalled his return to form by winning the Valero Texas Open before the Masters last year and looks ready for another big victory.

Scottie Scheffler - 14/1

The best player in the world right now, Scheffler has rocketed up the world rankings to top spot this year.

Scheffler struggled early on in his PGA Tour career but has since won three big tournaments in the space of just a few months.

He has clinched glory at the Phoenix Open, Arnold Palmer Invitational and WGC Match Play in recent weeks and will be looking to take his stunning form into the Masters.

10 Koepka is always a man for the big occasion Credit: Getty

Brooks Koepka - 16/1

A man for the Majors, Koepka has never played down the fact that he only really gets up for the biggest tournaments in golf.

The 31-year-old already has four Major titles to his name. He knows how to win when it's all on the line.

He missed the cut at Augusta last year but did finish T2 behind Tiger Woods in 2024.

Collin Morikawa - 16/1

The Open Champion remains one of the best in the world and is perhaps going in under the radar at the Masters this year.

He is yet to play his best golf at Augusta with his two appearances in Georgia so far ending in T44 and T18.

But the 25-year-old is a match for anyone on his day and will be looking to win a third Major in his fledging career already.

Viktor Hovland - 16/1

Another youngster who has the world at his feet.

Hovland is yet to taste Major glory but has been a winning machine worldwide in recent months.

He has six pro wins to his name despite being just 24 years old and surely a Major title isn't far away.

Hovland won the Silver Cup for being the low amateur at the 2024 Masters.

Bryson DeChambeau - 25/1

The big-hitting DeChambeau ruffled more than a few feathers by declaring he would blitz Augusta in the past but is yet to find the right formula.

The American enjoyed a stellar year in 2024, starring at the PGA Championship before winning the US Open.

He hasn't performed at a Major since with his best finish being T26 at last year's US Open and injuries may hamper his hopes at Augusta this year.

10 Can Matsuyama go back-to-back at the Masters? Credit: Getty

Hideki Matsuyama - 28/1

Not since Tiger Woods in 2001 and 2002 has a Masters champion successfully defended their title.

Matsuyama will now be hoping to do just that but faces a huge task.

The Japan star has won the Zozo Championship and the Song Open recently.

Tyrrell Hatton - 40/1

Arguably England's best hope of another Masters champion comes in the form of Hatton.

Now an established name on the PGA Tour after winning the 2024 Arnold Palmer, Hatton will be eager to perform at his best at a Major.

He has had a few top tens but has found it tough at the Masters. Can he go on a run and follow Nick Faldo and Danny Willett in bringing a Green Jacket back to Great Britain?

Tiger Woods - 50/1

Will he play?

The big question going into the 2024 masters is whether five-time champion Woods will tee it up. Surely winning it is beyond comprehension but come on, this is Tiger Woods...
